Course Overview:

Welcome to Social 10-1! Throughout the semester you will have the opportunity to explore multiple perspectives on the origins of globalization and the local, national, and international impacts of globalization on lands, cultures, economies, human rights, and quality of life. You will examine the relationships among globalization, citizenship, and identity to enhance skills for citizenship in a globalizing world. You will be asked to explore the multiple perspectives as you examine the effects of globalization on peoples in Canada and throughout the world, including the impact on Aboriginal and Francophone communities.

The aim of Social Studies is to develop the confidence and information required to be an active and engaged global citizen!

Related Issue 2: To what extent should contemporary society respond to the legacies of historical globalization?

Related Issue 3: To what extent does globalization contribute to sustainable prosperity for all people?

Related Issue 4: To what extent should you, as a citizen respond to globalization?

ACKNOWLEDGING THE LAND WHERE WE GATHER

We would like to acknowledge the traditional territories and oral practices of the Blackfoot Nations, which includes the Siksika, the Piikani, and the Kainai. We also acknowledge the Tsuut’ina and Stoney Nakoda First Nations, The Métis Nation (Region 3), and all people who make their homes in the Treaty 7 region of Southern Alberta.

EVALUATION

Throughout the course you will be asked to learn new information and develop skills and competencies.

Your mark will reflect learning and growth in the following areas:

1. Specific Outcomes – the pieces of knowledge you are asked to learn and work with
2. Competencies – “combinations of knowledge, skills and attitudes that students develop and apply for successful learning, living and working. They help students build upon how and what they know, think and can do. Students develop and apply competencies when they face new challenges and develop solutions to solve the problems of today, while imagining and creating a new tomorrow.” (Alberta Education)

Areas of Assessment:

You will be given multiple ways to show your understanding of content and development of competencies; these will include but not be limited to the following:

- a. Formative Assessment: self and peer evaluation, projects, assignments, feedback, observation, and dialogue. These assessments contribute to our day-to-day growth.
- b. Summative Assessment: projects, assignments, tests, written source analysis and position papers, quizzes, and final exam. These assessments make up your mark.
- c. Competencies: These will be assessed as part of assignments or independently through the use of rubrics.

ASSESSMENT POLICY

At Dr. E.P. Scarlett High School, we believe that marks should be a fair and accurate reflection of our students' understanding of the course learning outcomes.

- In order for teachers to evaluate this, we believe that students need to complete all course work. All assignments and tests impact course grades.
- To that end and within reason, the staff and administration are committed to providing students with opportunities to complete their course work.
- If students require an extension, they are expected to see their teacher prior to the due date; a teacher may request students attend Success Time or the Help Room to complete late or missing assessments.
- Students who will be missing class should communicate their absence prior to leaving when possible and extended absences require a form from the office.
- Students are encouraged to keep up to date with all of their assignments in every course.
- If clarification is needed or a problem is anticipated, they should speak with their teacher during class or before school.

In the case of tests, students are expected to write them immediately upon returning to school in the Completion Center, unless otherwise agreed upon prior to returning (i.e., email the teacher!) All formal writing assignments (modeled after the diploma exam) must be completed in class; if you miss any one of these, you will be expected to complete them in the Completion Centre immediately upon return unless otherwise agreed upon prior to returning.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

We value Academic Integrity- this means that you do your own work and cite all sources found on the internet; any incident of plagiarism will be dealt with on an individual basis. You can see a more detailed explanation on Dr. E.P. Scarlett's Academic Integrity policy here: <https://tinyurl.com/y8rpa6kx>

RESPECT

By nature, social studies can be a controversial topic that inspires strong opinions. Topics and case studies surrounding race; religious beliefs; skin colour; ability; family status; sexual orientation, and/or gender identity, have the potential to arise. Conversations around these topics could spark from the concepts in our Program of Studies, textbook, or our classroom discussions. Our classroom is defined by our acceptance and non-discrimination of all peoples, and our exploration for understanding will be guided by clarification and education.

VIDEOS AND FILMS

Throughout the semester students will be shown various video-clips, documentaries, biographies, and feature films. Each of these is linked to the program of studies, is previewed by the teacher, and adheres to age-appropriate ratings. Consult course outlines of specific teachers for a list of films that may be shown in class.
